Greer Whillans

Greer Whillans is a Canadian born professional dancer and choreographer, actor, and model. She has received great accolades for her unique contemporary choreography showcased in the Source Dance Company's productions of 'The Show: Gotta Get It' and 'West Side Story'. A sought after instructor, she is a dancer for the Vancouver WE Day events, where she teaches over 17,000 youth at Rogers Arena. She is a valued crew member at Groove Street Dance & Jump Dance Conventions, where she works closely with many of the industry's top professionals. Greer was assistant choreographer for Disney's touring artist Desirae, and teaches frequently at Vancouver's top drop-in studio Harbour Dance Centre. Her breadth of experience includes performing in theatre productions such as Mitac's 'Math Out Loud' directed by Mackenzie Gray, dancing for choreographer Paul Becker on Disney's original TV movie 'Girl vs Monster', performing in industrials for Telus and the Times of India Film Awards, as well as modeling for Vancouver's Eco Fashion Week. Greer can most recently be seen modeling in print campaigns for Ford Mustang, Honda Accord, and Cinema Secrets cosmetics and in television ads for Verizon, Campbell's Soup, Kohler and Mattel Games.
