

Peter Parrish

As a senior corporate executive, Peter Parrish enjoyed a highly successful career managing in both mature and developing enterprise environments, implementing a wide variety of new business initiatives and strategic renewals. An executive consultant for the past eighteen years, Peter's clients have included both public and private sector organizations seeking to develop and execute strategic and organizational change initiatives and seeking to enhance their operational, marketing, and sales best-practice models. In a consulting capacity, Peter has been privileged to work extensively for the First Nations of British Columbia, including strategic and business planning, organizational development, health and education service delivery, and information and communications technology projects. Peter has served on a number of corporate and society boards including the Canadian Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences (CARAS) board and the Foundation to Assist Canadian Talent on Records (FACTOR) board.